Gallant Juniors Chose Prom Queen From Paucity of Fair Candidates

Yesterday the gallant juniors held their election for the purpose of choosing their social celebrity of the season. Much to everyone's dismay there were only five candidates for the envied position of QUEEN OF THE PROM, and of these five the modest Kappas had only two. The Alpha Gams were good enough not to enter, as they thought that they had participated in campus activities enough for any one sorority.

Miss Mary Lou Renaker, member of Kappa Delta sorority and junior in the College of Arts and Sciences, in the College of Arts and Sciences, was elected Queen of the Junior Prom yesterday afternoon. The voting on all the candidates ran close, and Miss Renaker's majority was not large. Other nominees for the honor were Misses Sadie Hovious, Jane Clay Kenney, Mary Grace Heavenridge, and Josephine Blackburn.

This is the second time in the history of the University that a prom queen has been elected. Last year Miss Kathleen Fitch received the honor, but was unable to be present on the night of the prom due to illness. The coronation of the queen will take place at the prom, which will be held in the Men's gymnastum the evening of April 25. Life of Poet Laureate of Ken-tucky Is Reviewed by Lon-don Publication by Contemporaries

In a recent issue of "Town and Country Life," a magazine dealing with art, literature, agriculture, science, education, sport, the stage and travel, published in London, England, there appears a biographical sketch of Dr. James Thomas Cot-tron Noe, poet, author and lecturer and member of the faculty of the University College of Education.

Reviewing the life of Professor Noe in brief, the writer says: "There are some personalities which com-mand themselves to attention be-cause of virility, others because of their audacity, but it is given to the chosen few to command attention because of the genuine affection and admiration which they arouse. In this category must be placed James Thomas Cotton Noe."

The biography opens with a de-scriptive sketch of Cotton Noe from the pen of one of his contemposcriptive sketch of Cotton Noe from the pen of one of his contemporaries in Kentucky; it says: "I have known Cotton Noe in the home, in the schoolroom, on the platform, on the log in the woods. In all these places I have found him to be a big man, big in brain and heart—tender, observing, thoughtful. His poems can never die. They are not only polished literary productions, but they touch the souls of men. He is both serious and humorous without trying to be either."

He is both serious and humorous without trying to be either."
Doctor Noe's three books of poems.
"The Blood of Rachel." "The Loom of Life" and "Tip Sams of Kentucky," are all touched upon in pleasing fashion by the reviewer. He is compared with Riley and Burns in the charming manner in which he idealizes the familiar in his poems. In 1926 the general assembly named Doctor Noe "laureate of Kentucky."

LOST AND FOUND

A Lost and Found Department is conducted by Dean Melcher. All articles found during the year may be turned in at his office. Since the beginning of the year numerous articles have been restored to their owners, while there are still many articles of value that have never been claimed. Among those articles are: small change case with a key; gold ring with a rather odd set; two pen tops, one a Sheaffer and the other a Parker. A visit to Dean Melcher's office may prove of value.

OPEN SESAME

This week sees the campus teeming with the activity of the tenth annual high school assembly at the University. The grounds are filled with from 200 to 300 visitors from the state high schools, all guests of the extension departments, the music department and Phi Mu Alpha, honorary music fraternity. Dormitories, halls, fraternity and sorority houses are welcoming the talented young students of Kentucky, who in the next few years will constitute a large part of the student body of the University.

The value of such an undertaking can not be computed except in large figures. To the University it is a direct way of coming into contact with the most desirable material with which to fill its classrooms-a method by which it can show the many attractions that our colleges offer; to the high school students it is an opportunity to display their talents-an occasion on which they may become acquainted with their state University. Often just such a contact is the deciding factor for the high school senior boys and girls when they are choosing their future school. There also is no uncertain value to the city of Lexington, another beneficial influence of the University to her homesite.

The student body, the faculty, members of the University organizations, wish to open wide hospitable doors to our visitors this week, and will be ready, we are confident, to render any service

COUNCIL—BOOKSTORE

Charges made by students that the University book store is reaping inordinate profits from the sale of textbooks and school commodities will be given full consideration and an investigation begun soon by a committee appointed for that purpose, it was announced after a meeting of the council Wednesday afternoon.

The Kernel believes that the council has taken the proper action following a request from students that conditions at the store be investigated, as was noted in last week's issue of the student paper. The council, by acting quickly and precisely, has established itself as a true student body with the welfare of both the school and the students at heart. As long as it continues to function in such commendable manner the council will be a most valuable adjunct to

The Kernel printed the first story of the investigation with some misgivings, not because against the editors for "breaking" the story, but cause the relations of The Kernel with the book store have been both pleasant and profitable and because on Friday no official action feels that it was justified in so doing. Many students knew of the proposed action at press hour, and would have challenged the status of the paper as a student publication had there been no account of the council action published

Although there was some hesitation felt in giving the news story its position on page one, The Kernel also felt that students were entitled to know whether or not the book store was earning excess profit at the expense of students, school.

Now that the council officially has appoint ed a committee to conduct the investigation and and see them, these forward-looking companies report its findings to the council so that students will be enlightened as to the true conditions, lasting good should result. If the book store is reaping inordinate profits, the student body is entitled to have tha practice discontinued; if the store is not overcharging the University and the management are entitled to have it made known so that the present dissatisfaction with prices at the store will evaporate under knowledge that the book store is earning only that profit to which it should be entitled.

In other columns of today's paper will be found the latest story of action of the council at councilmen are going to provide all parties conthing all parties should desire.

Easter vacation, the councilmen will prepare sort of scrutiny on the same angles.

amendments to the constitution providing for additional power. The granting of the power request is significant. It shows that the council is held in esteem by University authorities and that full confidence is placed in the judgments of the councilmen.

At the next meeting the committee on investigation will report its findings on the book store situation. The Kernel believes that the report will justify the confidence in the councilmen that has been shown by both University authorities and the student body.

The report made by the president of the student council and appearing today in The Kernel was considered Wednesday afternoon by the councilmen, but was not accepted as final, as it covered only the sale of books.

CO-EDS AND MARRIAGE

In a vocational survey recently conducted by the Dean of Women at Northwestern University, the startling discovery was made that coeds, at least those of that university, do not want to marry! Of 400 girls interviewed only 23 admitted they were yearning for or planning marriage. As one of the girls who was questioned during the course said, in regard to the "institution of marriage," "Who wants to live in an institution?

The result of this survey may or may not indicate a great number of things. First of all it most of us a long time. Few of us in the first fit in with the picture presented by this survey. will have forgotten how. As a matrimonial bureau the university, supposedly, has been, according to daily papers, magazines and humorous publications, the rendezvous for all those with a consumate desire to quit the life of single bliss. It may indicate that girls of this type no longer find it necessary it does not go far enough. We favor discuss or expedient to attend college or university with in the Harvard mood, if not after the Harvard this purpose in view.

If this be true, then the conclusion might be drawn that college men no longer appeal to the average girl, either because of his "college" attitude, or because the average college man is being pushed out of the picture by those who, being older, have more to offer in a monetary way. On the other hand it might indicate that college men are no longe rsusceptible to the wiles and winning ways of such girls. Or there is the possibility that the co-eds actually are interested in the attainment of a career for themselves.

Only one conclusion, however, may be drawn surveys of a similar nature: Human nature is investigation practically worthless. People do not make a practice of expressing their most intimate ideas and ideals on form blanks. The modern girl fails to see the advantage of telling the dean of women that their sole aim in attending college is to "get her man."

The Kernel extends felicitations to the queenelect on the honor accorded her by the Junior class in their selection of her as Junior Prom Queen. A second time the Juniors have chosen been reorganized and professionalized. The first wisely and well, Miss Kathleen Fitch, last year's queen, being the first.

As the student body of the University crowns another beauty, chosen from the resident bevy of girls, the reputation of the women of the South and of Kentucky in particular, crops forth in perennial freshness. "She walks in beauty like the night, Of cloudless chimes and starry skies: And all that's best of dark and light Meet in her aspect and her eyes: Thus mellowed to that tender light Which Heaven to gaudy day denies.

Such teachings have been instilled in the minds of Kentuckians, that they cannot conceive a public event without the inclusion of the honoring of woman. The period might almost bear the caption of "Bowing to Beauty" or some like phrase

GETTING A JOB

(Oregon Emerald.) College seniors must be "smooth," but their dress must not be too "collegiate" when interviewing prospective employers, is advice one hears this time of the year when big corporations are sending field men down to look over many of whom are working their way through the "crop" of college men who will graduate in June and be looking for jobs.

PROHIBITION AS A COLLEGE ISSUE

(Wisconsin Cardinal.) The Yale Daily News objects to the project of the Harvard Crimson for a national discussion of prohibition and its effects upon the colleges. The Crimson has published a program of prohibition reform, formulated by the Harvard Debate Council, which the editors hope to see taken up by other college editors and discussed by other college debate clubs.

The Yale editors feel that prohibition is not college issue. Their interest, an editorial in His the News states, "is in getting at the facts of prohibition as they obtain in the university . . It is our conviction that facts and figures showing the present extent of drinking in college would be a valuable contribution to the issue.

We hold no brief for the Harvard plan. We find it rather vague. But the Yale paper's denial of interest in reform seems to us completely unjustified. We feel that all matters of public welfare are college issues, whether they be local state or national whether they be economic or political or ethical. In another year most of us who conduct these discussions, either in the college papers or in college debates, or simply in fraternity house bull sessions, will be out of college. Whatever thinking we may have done during these four years of comparative peace, comparative freedom, will have to last surely does indicate that the popular conception five years out of school will have much time to of the co-ed at the modern university fails to think, and at the end of that time most of us

GO TO CHURCH DAY

Sunday, April 13, has been chosen by the University Y. M. C. A. as the day to be set aside for both students and faculty members as the occasion to be known as "Go to Church Sunday." Each year this organization, together with the Y. W. C. A., sponsor this day for the purpose of attempting to make the students on the University campus "Church Conscious." Ministers of the Lexington churches co-operate with these groups in presenting sermons of special interest to men and women in college ranks.

The Kernel considers it a distinct privilege to urge that all students co-operate with these religious organizations in the promotion of this day. As President McVey has said: "The wellbalanced life must include the religious phase Too much commendation cannot be tendere the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. The largest of these foreign language schools, and also the largest Chinese school outside China itself, is the Mun Lun Chinese School, in Honolulu, which has at present more than 1,100 scholars. These range in age from 6 to 7 to 18, for the institution includes all grades from the primary up to and through the high school with a complete course covering 12 years. It has been in existence for about 20 years, constantly growing in size and scope, receiving its chief support from the well-to-do Chinese of Hawaii and from its exceedingly small tuition charge, which is only about $1 a month. This, however, is extremely narrow "One Hundred Percentism," for it should go without saying that there is much about the Oriental cultures well worth preserving. One of the aims of the educational process in Hawaii is internationalism, for it is obvious that that process could not hope to succeed in such a place as this if arbitrary nationalistic distinctions were to obtain. There can, therefore, be no valid objection to the foreign languages school in Hawaii as at present constituted and directed, and the enthusiasm manifested by the great body of pupils at the Mun Lun School, some of whose final year young people are already studying at the international University of Hawaii, cannot but augur well for their future usefulness and loyalty as American citizens. -TLR-

The subject of Dean Cooper's address was "Positions." Among the various qualities which he believes various qualities which he believes are necessary to success are: belief in one's profession, common sense, industry, and integrity. The fine thing about these qualifications is that they may be developed. As different positions require different qualifications, it is necessary for the senior to analyze himself and to find his fitness for any certain type of work.

"A college course," concluded Dean Cooper, "does not give one the right to expect an administrative or executive position at the outset of his career. He must work from the beginning. He should start in one type of work and keep with this until he has reached success."

"Redemption," taken from Lyod Tolstoi's play "The Living Corpse" and starring John Gilbert, opens at the Strand theater Sunday. This is the second talking picture for Gilgert and although the first, "His Glorious Night," was not received any too well, this star remains high in box office value. "Redemption" is a romantic drama of Russia and Eleanor Boardman, Renee Adoree and Conrad Nagel are in the supporting cast of the Metro production. Kelley and Heber will find themselves pitted against the best in the South when they start against Brown, of L. S. U., Farmer, of North Carolina, and Smith, of Alabama. Brown won both the 100-yard dash and the 220-yard dash at the Southern Conference meet held last year at Birmingham, and Farmer can be counted on to push the entire field.

on to push the entire field.

Kelley has been able to show his heels to Heber in the 100-yard dash so far this year, but Shively expects the Newport boy to give him a much better race as he develops endurance. Kelley's best race is the 220-yard dash and his time of 23 seconds flat on the Georgetoown track last week is indicative of what can be expected of him when he is pushed in this event.

The Tech Relay came a little early in the season for Kentucky to show her full strength, but Shively is optimistic on the chances of the Cats to place in the meet. There is no official team score kept during the meet and the 100-yard dash is the only track event besides the various track event besides the various treaks. Field events are a part of man to date. The meet at Georgetown last week disclosed the fact that Kentucky has two first class dash men as well as four top notch middle distance runners. Floppy Forquer surprised by defeating Babe Wright in the shot, but the showing of the Kentucky men in the high jump and pole vault was disappointing. Gibson was handicapped in the pole vault by having a pole break under him, but Roberts simply had an off of day in the high jump. Captain Owens ran the two-mile in 10 minutes and 33 seconds and finished with plenty of reserve. It would have been interesting to have seen him pushed in this event.

CAPTAIN HAYS OWENS

Hays Owens is captain of his third track team. And Hays has never led a losing team.

Owens has followed an eventful career at the University of Kentucky, mostly along athletic lines, with his exploits in other fields dimmed by his achievements in the blue and white rigging.

For an athlete who has won letters three different times in two sports and worked just as hard in a third, Hays has an exceptional scholastic standing of better than 2. Among other things Hays is captain of Company A in the University R. O. T. C.

Owens was graduated from Lexington Senior High school in 1926, where he had played football, basketball and ran on the track team. He earned letters by running the dashes and the half-mile, but failed to get a letter in the other sports.

Owens was captain of the Kentucky freshman thinlies in 1926 when the team won eight meets. He ran the half-mile and 440. He made letters in basketball and track in his second year and again in his junior year. In 1927 he won the intercollegiate cross-country run at Louisville. He was a hard-working scrub on the football squad in 1928 and 1929. Hays made the half-mile in 2 flat; the mile in 4:35, and the two miles in 10 flat. He is running the two miles, half-mile and the relay this year. Hays was captain of the track team that won the meet at Camp Knox last summer. He is a member of Sigma Chi social fraternity, Omricon Delta Kappa, honorary campus leader's fraternity, Sigma Delta Chi, honorary journalistic faternnity, and Scabbard and Blade, honorary military fraternity. He has been named delegate on the national convention of Scabbard and Blade at Minneapolis, April 24-26. He formerly was connected with The Kernel sports staff.

Hays is majoring in journalism and minoring in history and military science. He plans to become a coach or enter some form of journalism.

KENTUCKY'S BASKETBALL COACH

KENTUCKY'S BASKETBALL COACH

The University of Kentucky is entertaining applicants for the position of basketball coach of the Wildcat varsity. When Johnny Mauer packs his duffel and moves north to Miami University next year a new man/ will be deciding who's who and how it should be done. Just now the athletic council is master of ceremonies at the who's who game.

Approximately 300 applications are being considered by the council for the position recently vacated by Coach Mauer. A majority of the applications are written and include excellent recommendations, according to S. A. "Daddy" Boles, athletic director. A number of well-known mentors are included in the aspirants for the Kentucky post.

Selection of the new coach will be made within the next several weeks, Daddy Boles said. The council refuses to be rushed in its selection and is considering each application thoroughly. Announcement as to who the new coach will be will be made immediately following his selection. The athletic council which will make the selection is comprised of Dr. W. D. Funkhouser, chairman: Daddy Doles, Enoch Grehan, Ernest A. Bureau, Gale Mohney, Len Miller, Louis Hillenmeyer, John Stoll and Lou Haggin.

SAYS TOM SILER

Tom Siler, sports editor of the Orange and White, University of Tennessee student publication, is looking for a great team at Knoxville this fall. He speaks thusly:

"When the undefeated Volunteers step on Shield-Watkins field clad in moleskin and fed up on sauerkraut juice next fall there will be a great team to represent the university. Not only will there be a great team on the field, but there will also be a great team on the bench. Never have we seen such a galaxy of superlative reserve material to call upon in case of injuries. Mention any position and there will be a high class sub on the bench ready to fill a regular's shoes. Not men who will fill the position in name only, but also in victorious action."

Tom's last words do not apply to the Thanksgiving game.

And while we are working on Tom Siler down Knoxville way we might give the devil his due. Tom seldom forgets Kentucky in the column he conducts in the Orange and White and his comments are often complimentary. For instance:

"Kentucky's great basketball coach, John Mauer, has announced that he will accept a position with Miami University at Oxford, Ohio, at the close of the present school year. This is quite a blow to the cage hopes of the Wildcats, as it always takes a new coach a year or two to become acclimated to a new school. Also it was announced that Carey Spicer was elected captain of the cage forces. It seems that there are very few things that this boy Spicer can't do. For one thing he can play football and he's far from mediocre on the hardwood."

This isn't exactly sports unless it can be listed under the indoor variety, but since Miss Marguerite McLaughlin insists that women dictate their own fashions, and since Niel Plummer threatens to forsake the water wagon and cast a "wet" ballot in the Literary Digest poll should anyone make that crack about long skirts "hiding a multitude of shins," here 'tis: clipped from the "Grapurchat," student publication of State Teachers' College at East Radford, Va., under the gentle heading of "Apes."

"The girls from Hunter College, who are approximately 6,000 strong, have condemned the new long skirts and have a multitude of sins to lay are going to wear just exactly what the male dressmakers of Paris tell them to, whether they like it or not. They just simply can't get away from it. And what hurts them most is that they have to admit it. Free, emancipated womanhood of this country? Who coined that term any way? Next year some big French dressmaker probably will decide that he needs a new car and will make some striking aleration in woman's dress. Will they complain and refuse, in indignant terms, to wear such a thing? Perhaps, but they'll wear 'em just the same. We dare 'em to say it ain't so."

TENNIS COURTS

The following revisions in the rules governing the use of the University courts has been prepared by the grounds committee and will be strictly enforced:

1. Courts are for the use of U. of K. faculty and students only.

2. Courts must not be used when wet or damp.

3. All players must wear regula-tion smooth rubber-soled tennis shoes without heels or suction soles. 4. When all courts are in use players must play doubles only and give up the court to those waiting after the doubles sets have been

5. Any violations of these rules will result in the forfeiture of all privileges of using the courts.

CONVOCATION TO HEAR ROBINSON

Instructor In Military Science from Indiana Univer-sity Will Address Student

Col. O. P. Robinson, professor of Military Science and Tactics at the University of Indiana, will speak at the General Convocation, April 23, at 10 o'clock in Memorial hall. His subject is "The Operations of March 21, 1918." This is better known as the Somme drive.

the Somme drive.

Colonel Robinson is a graduate of the Army Staff College. Army School of Line and Army Signal School. He was formerly head of the department of military history at the general service school at Fort Leavenworth, Kan. Colonel Robinson is the author of "Fundamentals of Military Strategy." As a speaker he is extremely interesting. His subject has an appeal, not only to the R. O. T. C. students, but to the whole student body.

The operations of March 21, 1918.

The operations of March 21, 1918, better known as the Somme drive, was the biggest and final offensive drive made by the Germans. An his drive made by the Germans. An his torical synopsis of the drive is as follows: "The first and heaviest blow fell to the right of the British army and at the junction between the French and the British. It was launched March 21 on a front of 50 miles, and continued until April 6.

"This drive aimed to separate the British and French armies, to isolate the former by the capture of an important railroad center at Amiens, and force them back to the channel. It resulted in driving the British forces back about 40 miles."

This was the hardest combat the Allies had during the entire war. It was at this time that Marshal Foch took command of the Allied forces and united them under one head. Col. Robinson knows this subject thoroughly and his talk can be appreciated by everyone.

team for a return invasion to the Ohio State stronghold at Columbus Monday and Tuesday to continue the argument left unsettled when the teams divided the two game series in the Kentucky stadium last Friday and Saturday.

The menu for this week is plenty of hitting and quite a bit of fielding, with probably a couple of scrimmages with Coach Johnny Mauer's freshman crew. With the side of the column, the Wildeats are settling down to real work and do not intend to lose any more ball games due to erratic fielding and lack of hitting.

The pitchers were given as much rest as could be afforded them in the earlier part of the week. Rhoads and McBrayer were allowed to work but an inning each in the frosh game Tuesday afternoon. Howard was called upon to face the "Big Green" gunners in most of the fray. As yet McMurray has not seen any service, but he probably will get to work part of one of the Ohio games.

Kentucky Rifle Teams Complete

The varsity and R. O. T. C. rifle teams of the University of Kentucky have just finished one of the most successful seasons in the career of University competition. Practically all the telegraphic contests during the past season were posted as victories in the Kentucky armory.

Through the diligent efforts of Sergeant H. B. Bryant, who acted as assistant coach and kept the riflemen in the gallery early and late, the Kentucky team was developed to a high point of efficiency. Captain Herbert Schmidt is coach of the team.

The varsity team includes Rex L. Allison, R. L. Bradbury, Ed Crady, C. M. Christie, William Eads, William E. Florence, Austin Henderson, Alvin McGary, Jess M. Laughlin, L. S. Payton, T. Mantz and Cecil

The R. O. T. C. team is composed of R. L. Allison, R. L. Bradbury, C. M. Christie, O. B. Coffman, P. H. Orem, William E. Goren, William E. Florence, Alustin Henderson, I. D. Iverson, Cecil Smith, William E. Florence, Alvin McGary, L. S. Payton, S. C. Perry and J. Thornton.

The Kentucky Kittens baseball team will journey to Danville today to meet State Deaf and Dumb School in their first game of the season. The Big Green has been showing rapid signs of improvement and if they continue to improve, should be able to complete their schedule without a defeat.

In a practice session Monday with the varsity Coach Mauer presented a team that gave the Big Blue plenty of trouble. At the end of the four inning practice period the first year men had licked the varsity by a 1 to 0 score. This can be accounted for, however, because the Wildcats were without the services of Rhoads or McBrayer on the mound. Coach Devereaux sent "Red" Howard in to pitch against the frosh and from all appearances he should develop into a capable hurler.

It was Ellis, the freshman pitching act, who kept the varsity from scoring. The Wildcats seemed to be unable to find out just what kind of a ball this Ellis was throwing and were able to connect with it but few times. Ellis has a nice delivery and his promotion to the varsity should lessen the worries of Coach Dever.

the places that will be left vacant by Rhoads and McBrayer, who graduate this year.

The Kittens sent an infield to the diamond that is as good, if not better, than that of the varsity. Three men in the infield could step up into the shoes of their big brothers and they would never be missed. Hogge at the shortstop position looked best, and it was his three-base hit that allowed the frosh to score after one of his teammates had singled. Hogge fields beautifully and when it comes to hitting he can usually be counted on. Mike Tucker at third made the veteran Mauser look sick. Tucker steps around in a fast fashion and would be able to relieve the Wildcats' flatfooted third baseman if he were only a sophomore. Kreuter at second plays nice ball and should develop into a nice ball player by next year.

The probable lineup for the game with the Danville Institute is: Ellis, Wooten and Worthington, pitchers; Lavin and Gilber, catchers; Kaempffe or Sparks at first, Krueter at second, Hogge at short and Tucker at third. The outfield will be selected from Engel, Worthington, Davis, Mitchel and Shields.

Sometimes this valuation is suffused with admiration, more often with condemnation. The masses of people in foreign countries know the United States and its inhabiants chiefly by what they see in the American movies, in the senational press or read in American literature of protest, such as "Main Street" and "Babbitt." It can be readily understood, therefore, why American civilization is regarded by large numbers of persons in other countries as a jazz civilization, with low numbers of persons in other countries as a jazz civilization, with low standards of cultural and spiritual life; a civilization characterized by a scramble for wealth, for the material things that wealth will buy and by an absence of interest in the finer things of the spirit which have made life really worth while throughout the ages; a civilization in which the art of living, the finest of all arts, is practically unknown. It can also be understood why so many thoughtful people in other countries fear the "Americanizing" that is taking place in the attitude toward life among their own people.

Are There Not Other Influences

Are There Not Other Influences Is this a just estimate or are there other influences spreading from her shores. Are there a growing number of persons in other countries who believe that the United States is making real contribution to the cultural and spiritual life of the world? This article is written in the belief that these two questions can be answered in the affirmative.

that these two questions can be answered in the affirmative.

Before the Great War there is a different story; but it is well known that the contacts of the United States with Europe from 1917 on, aroused in America an interest in Europe and among many Europeans it aroused a desire to learn about the United States, its people and its civilization.

This desire on the part of Europeans and Americans for a better understanding of each other took many forms of realization. None was more significant than the interchange of students. Institutions in the United States made successful efforts to attract students from all over the world, the number gradually increasing until in 1929 there were enrolled almost 10,000 foreign students in its colleges and universities. Moreover, countries which had been comparatively indifferent to the presence of American students before the war now in turn made efforts to attract them. In the case of the European countries these fellowships are provided almost always for graduate students who pursue some special field of scholarship in the foreign country in which they study. One of the reasons why the United States has had such a remarkable influence upon the cultural and educational life of China is that the thousand of Chinese students who have studied in its is institutions during the past two generations came as undergraduates and became saturated with American political, economic and social was more significant than the interchange of students. The "vacation courses" given before the war in summer in a few European countries for foreign students have in larger measure become "summer sessions" in americans. I fact, in some instances the summer sessions have been deliberately modeled upon those of American institutions with reference to length of sessions, supervision, assigned readings, examination and so forth, so that American students who attend them might receive "credit" in their home institutions for work done at the foreign universities. This is unfortunate, because one of the features of higher education in the United States of which we should rid ourselves as soon as possible is the method of obtaining a bachelor's degree by the accumulation of cooperation between education and industry Of far greater value has been the adoption in Europe of the policy of any American students and industry that has characterized recent industrial development in the United States. During the past eight years there have been established in European countries national unions of students which have more recently been organized into the Confederation Internationale des Etudiants. Two years ago the National Student Federation of America was founded and it has become the American branch of the Confederation. Though the federation has attained little real strength as yet, this action has been of service to the thousand of American students who go abroad during the summer vacation, for the students

High School Edits "Student American" National Newspaper

MANKATO, Minn.—A newspaper written and edited by high school students, intended for national cir-culation and dedicated to the work of increasing respect for the prohi-bition law among young people, has made its initial appearance here. It is believed to be the first publica-tion of this type in the United States.

known, remodeled their third class quarters to improve their quality and make them more attractive and established what is known as student third class. The low rate charged has enabled thousands of American students to visit European counties who otherwise would have been unable to do so. Moreover, similar tours to Latin America, to Japan and Russia were organized last year for the first time.

Knows Background of Countries The paper, called the Student American, is the organ of the Stu-American, is the organ of the Student Sobriety Society, a temperance club for high school boys that last year grew from a local organization of one chapter and 49 members to a national club of 18 chapters and 335 members, with members-atlarge in five states and the District of Columbia.

A statement in the first edition of the paper defines its purpose as threefold: to provide publicity for the Student Sobriety Society, to develop a new fact service in defense of the Eighteenth Amendment, and to provide a small revenue to carry on the purposes of the Student Sobriety Society.

The first editorial entitled "The Americans spend their summer va-cations in Europe is no guarantee that a better international under-standing will result. We are all aware of the irritation caused in Europe by the advent of the Ameri-can "arriviste." But the student is not an "arriv-

One of the most significant aspects of this movement is the interchange of students on fellowships. The existence of these fellowships enables some of the finest students in all the countries that exchange to study abroad, students who otherwise, because of financial limitations, would be unable to do so. With the exception of the Rhodes scholar-"Under the shadows of a slanderous whispering campaign, many of the prohibition law by unfair and untrue statements that prohibition has degraded and debauched the youth of this country," the editorial states. "The young men have alstates. "The young men have al-ready risen against this practice by forming the Student Sobriety So-ciety, which needs your support."

In addition to the money obtained through the sale of the paper, the society receives revenue from adver-tising, space being purchased by merchants who approve of the or-ganization and wish to help the dry

The president of the Student So-briety Society, William N. Plymat, is also editor-in-chief of the paper. Edward Hoffman is managing editor and Sanford Henke, business man-ager. Young Plymat explained the purposes of the club at the 1929 national convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union at In-dianapolis, his expenses being paid by the second district, W. C. T. U. of Minnesota.

"Can we win? Can we win what? Can we win the prize? Yes, we can. See us try. And see us win."

More recently lessons on roads, stock, forestry, taxation, sanitation and numerous subjects related to the rural adult's daily activites have been prepared. These lessons covered briefly some of the ideas presented more in detail by pamphlets regularly issued by governmental departments.

The possibility of printing introductory lessons in newspapers, chiefly rural weeklies and small down dailies, throughout the United States, is being considered. This plan depends upon co-operation of the press, as funds to buy the necessary space are not available. However, the messpapers' possible gain through increased literacy was pointed out as an incentive.

Now Recommended Always Appeals Peaceful Restfulness of Old Frankfort Pike Typifies "Golden Age"

O. K. Barnes

O. K. Barnes

As the mellow haze of a late summer afternoon makes a fairyland of the landscape, and the great, scarlet sun casts its fading lances of golden light through the stalwart limbs of ancient oaks, the quiet of the broad acres is broken only by the twilight song of happy robins, the distant tinkle of a bell, the low of contented cattle. The rolling expanse of purple grass ripples in the breeze that gently caresses the countryside at the close of a hot day.

An aging mansion, stately and ivy-

An aging mansion, stately and ivy-clad, can be glimpsed through the great trees, silhouetted against an azure sky. It is a scene that birnsg visions of well-kept old English es-

Lafayette; along it slowly traveled the deep-browed Kentucky lawyer, on his way to Frankfort to attend the legislature; along it brave John Hunt Morgan galloped at the head of his dashing cavalrymen, fiercely intent to do or die. No more! No more do these fascinating figures move along the winding roadway. But the advent of the automobile is the only element to mar the restful peacefulness of the old Frankfort pike.

Among such characters as the Campus Cop of Yale and the Orange Man of Harvard, Pierre Whitning, venerable custodian of the Administration building, takes his place as the representative of the University of Kentucky.

Pierre's long service with the University is soon to be told in print in the New York Telegram. His story will be one of a series of feature articles concerning famous characters on American campuses. The story which elevates Pierre to his new position—far different from his usual world of brooms and mops—has been sent to the New York newspaper by Miss Helen King, of the Publicity Bureau, in response to a request for a story concerning the University's most famous character. Pierre Whitning's biography reads like a history of the University since its very beginning.

It was Pierre, then a little barefoot boy, who carried the first building for the University to boy, who carried the first building for the University—then known as the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Kentucky. With that job Pierre began his long record of service, a record to which he is adding even today.

"Mr. President say I have been at the University for 52 years, so I guess I has," Pierre tells those who seek to learn exactly how long he has been at his present job.

To Pierre all the fuss and bother about his being the University's most famous character means little, and although he doesn't say so in just so many words—he manages to convey the general impression to those who question him, that the University since likes and its being the University and courage were inbred and poison whisky had not yet been introduced by the bootleger, then must Kentucky turn to the one spot that still exemplifies that dead era of beauty and pride; the converted to submine to door die. No more lost the sudministration building for the University of the University by the beat and of his dashing caloni legger, then must Kentucky turn to the one spot that still exemplifies that dead era of beauty and pride; Kentucky must crank up her one-lunged lizzie and travel down the glorious old Frankfort pike to drink in a beauty that inspires.

Sigma Delta Chi, honorary journalistic fraternity at the University, will hold its annual Founders' Day banquet at 6 o'clock this evening at the Lafayette hotel. The banquet will be held instead of the gridiron banquet which was to be given on this date.

Chapter and alumni members have been invited to attend the banquet. Prominent newspapermen of Lexington will be special guests.

According to Jess Laughlin, president of Sigma Delta Chi, the banquet is being held one week early because Founders' Day—April 17—comes during the Easter vacation.

elor's degree whenever he could successfully pass the examination.

"A brilliant student could perhaps obtain his degree from college in six months. There would be many who would graduate in three years. There is nothing particularly sacred about the mystical four years in which to gain a degree."

President Rutchins, a tall, broad shouldered, dark haired young man, smiled as he recalled his work as dean of the Yale law school under the prevailing credit method or granting degrees. "Why, we had to buy an adding machine to find out whether or not our students could graduate."

The youngest president in the world of a great university, squared his shoulders and snapped out, in answer to the question. "Are large universities diploma mills?" "The size has nothing to do with it. A large university can be a great one."

He smiled as he commented upon student self-government.

Thave had little connection with student disclipline, as I was dean of a professional school, before becoming president. In that position, we followed the rugle of ignoring conduct of our student, unless they broke into print. I don't know whether that method would apply to undergraduates or not."—Ohio State Lantern.

Cupolas controlled from the laboratory

White hot rivers of metal, pouring from big cupolas in Crane foundries, are even more thoroughly analyzed, more carefully watched, than the drinking water pouring from a faucet in a well-ordered city.

Because correct chemical ingredients in valve metals are as essential to absolute safety and right functioning of a piping installation as pure water to human health, Crane Co. has always maintained laboratory control of its cupolas.

This means that experts in the metallurgical and physical testing of metals are responsible for the quality of every valve and fitting turned out. It means that tensile strength, yield point, elongation, and reduction of area of test bars taken every hour of the day's run are known to laboratory and cupola chemists.

It means that constantly, as the metals pour out, the proportion of silicon, manganese, carbon, phosphorus, calcium, pure iron, are known and uniformly maintained. It means immediate correction of any variation and rejection of faulty materials.

From specifications of raw materials to final installation, Crane Co. knows its products and what they will do. How Crane Co. developed the background for this knowledge makes an absorbing story. It is titled Pioneering in Science. You are cordially invited to send for your copy. Aside from its interest, you will find it a splendid reference book on the reactions of metals to high temperatures and pressures.

We have recently discovered the lowest form of animal life in the college president who makes it his personal duty to work as an undercover man at fraternity dances—where his presence is neither appreciated or desired—in order to learn which of the bad little boys have attempted to bury their disgust with their school in drink. The office the reptile holds is degraded—the animal itself is quite beyond, or below, degradation. Along with our discovery of the most detestable individual in the world came the discovery of the most ludicrous. He is the male who thinks that he is going over when he sings to his date.

Although the cast was composed of many who are experienced in the mannerisms of the stage, the guiding hand of Doctor Riley was seen time and again in the finesse of certain roles requiring an extra touch of performance necessary to complete the well-rounded production in a manner that must have been in the mind of Bruce Evans when he wrote the script. The director's interpretation was equaled only by his delicate naunces in pointing the finger of suspicion at everyone except the true "Scarlet." Five persons met death during the three acts. The last one to die was "Scarlet." by the suicide route. He was the unknown, but the audience had already returned a verdict of "not gulty." In such manner did cast and director nobly acquit themselves throughout the entire performance.

In recapitulation, it is indeed dif-In recapitulation, it is indeed dif-ficult to say that one member of the cast outshone another, so varied were the characterizations, but we point with admiration to the scar-let-clad Miss Davis, who, as the evi-dential murder suspect, handled her role so skillfully that the emotions of the audience ran the gamut of role so skillfully that the emotions of the audience ran the gamut of her ever-changing moods and actions. From near-hysteria through an emotive lexicon to budding tenderness for her hero detective, she performed her part with rare skill and charm. and charm.

Second only to Miss Davis in the feminine contingent, Miss Johnson, as Della Faye, a sophisticated, suspicious and unruffled dancer who had pirouetted her entrance into the inner circle of the Marsh residence, found instant favor with those in attendance. The antithesis of Miss Davis, she soon was stealing the show, only to have her success cut short by a heart attack while passionately denouncing Jeanne Page as the arch-fiend responsible for the mystifying series of deaths within the household.

within the household.

Miss Fisher disappointed us as the widow of Cyrus Marsh. She seemed repressed—failed to succumb to the ravages of grief on account of the sudden and startling death of her husband; lacked the customary emotionalism of wives and widows. But when the play came to an end and we found that she knew beforehand what was going to happen, but not the seriousness thereof, we realized that we had been betrayed. One of the finest touches of the entire performance is accredited to the beautiful and charming Miss Fisher.

James Gates, who played the part of Lee Stuart. Federal narcotic agent, convinced us that it is better to stay on the blind side of the law than to attempt to outwit detective of the stuart type. He identified "Scarlet," the murdered, fell in love with Jeanne Page, kept his brother detective second-guessing, learned how the murders were committeed, and in general disported himself according to the highest qualifications demanded by his part. Of course he had assistance, but that only served to show the excellence of his acting.

Earl Cella, as Al Kidd, the other detective in the production, made us want to help him solve the mystery. Aside from one or two instances, he was a farcical sleuth with a derby hat, tough voice and bad disposition. He was continually puzzled and worried, but managed to conceal much of it by means of loud talking and a threatening atloud talking and a threatening at-titude. He carried his role with ease the show had it not been for his unfortunate early demise. Jack Smith played as Terry Marsh, but hid his light in order to bring the production to an unexpected denouement. George Roberts was convincing as Spike Noonan, the gardener and ex-convict, and so hard he was that Detective Kidd suffered by comparison. Horace Miner, a new actor in Stroller plays, gave a realistic and forceful performance as Julius Hunter, the gardener who knew too much and was murdered before he could "come clean" to the detectives.

and added materially to the success SUNDAY IS 'GO of the production. TO CHURCH DAY'

All University Students Are Requested by Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. to Attend Church April 13

Sunday, April 13, has been designated by the University Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. as "Go to Church" Sunday, especially for University students and faculty members. It is urged by the heads of the respective organizations that all students attend some church on that Sunday. All students who are members of fraternal organizations are re-day. All students who are members of fraternal organizations are requested to go in a body.

Sponsoring the "Go to Church" plan has been the custom of the Y. W. C. A. and the Y. M. C. A. for several years, and the students and faculty have always responded to the opportunity afforded them. Many churches co-operate with these two organizations and give special sermons on this Sunday. Students may attend the church of their choice. Those expecting to their choice. Those expecting to attend in a group will be given special accommodations.

Those churches who are co-operating with the Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. have sent these organizations the subjects for the sermons. They are as follows:
